VOICES FOUNDATION

Voices Foundation is a music education (0) organisation. Its founder, Susan Digby, believes (56) that learning to sing is the best way to introduce children to music. 'Playing a (57) instrument is difficult, and the (58) of children who begin usually give up, but everyone has a voice,' she says.

Digby's (59) for the Foundation came when she was travelling in Hungary. 'People there believe that a child's (60) benefits from music education, and it has a (61) effect on other skills, like (62) and linguistic skills. Music education provides a training which extends children's (63) and listening powers.' Digby believes that if children get (64) from singing, they are more likely to learn an instrument (65) when they are older.

RECOGNISING A LIAR

Recent research has led many (0) scientists to believe that the (56) to recognise whether or not someone is telling the (57), or is about to break bad news has more to do with science than a magical (58) sense.

The human body and brain subconsciously pick up signals so small that they would not (59) be noticed. If someone is telling lies, for (60), their body language is slightly (61) The brain picks up on these changes, which may include a bead of sweat or a slight (62) in tone of voice. Upon the (63) that the person has been lying, the brain has a 'told you so' sensation. Scientists argue that people should trust their own (64) ; their instinctive reactions will tell them if a person is (65) and not to be trusted.

THE MAN WHO FURNISHED THE WORLD

Ingvar Kamprad runs the most successful (0) furniture business in the world. His (56) of paying extra for already expensive goods in terms of (57) costs gave him the idea of producing build-it-yourself items. (58) could see the items on display in self-service stores, pick up their (59) of goods and take them straight home. In (60) , he offered car roof-racks, which made it even easier for people to take their purchases with them.

There are now more than 150 stores (61) 30 countries. Kamprad dislikes the (62) that his stores create the same kinds of homes all over the world. His (63) is that there are millions of different ways that people can use his (64) , and each nationality puts items together in different (65) to suit their own living styles.

THE EARTH GALLERIES

To many people the word 'geology' conjures (0) rather dull images of lumps of rock in glass cases. People (1) to regard geology as an academic subject that you don't need to know about (2) you have to study it at school. If you visit the Earth Galleries at London's Natural History Museum, however, you'll (3) that this image couldn't be (4) from the truth.

The (5) of the exhibition is not to produce future geologists, but rather to inspire interest in a subject which is (6) to everyday life. The Earth Galleries turn the traditional idea of the geological museum (7), literally because you begin at the top. The central space in the museum is a glass-topped atrium. As you enter, you (8) up to the top of this by escalator. On the (9), the escalator passes through a massive revolving globe, measuring eleven metres (10) diameter. This represents a planet, not necessarily the Earth. (11) at the top, you work your way down through the six different exhibitions that (12) the museum.

The individual exhibitions explain natural phenomena (13) earthquakes and volcanoes as well as looking at the Earth's energy (14) and where our most common building (15) come from. These exhibitions allow everyone to appreciate the fascination of geology.

COFFEE CULTURE

The other day I wanted a cup of coffee, so I (0) into the bank. I sat in a soft armchair and watched the world (1) , which, in this case, was the (2) for the services of the bank clerks. I'm joking, of course, but this could soon be common in banks in big cities.

The (3) for 'real coffee' in Britain, like that for mobile phones, seems never-ending. However, the (4) is that the attraction for many British people (5) not so much in the coffee as in the 'coffee culture' that surrounds it. This is to do with big, soft sofas and the idea that if you sit on one, you too can (6) the actors in the American TV comedy Friends.

In London, the first café opened in 1652. Men would (7) there, often at (8) times during the day, to (9) news and gossip, discuss (10) of the day and (11) business. The cafés acted as offices and shops in which merchants and agents, clerks and bankers could carry out their (12)

In London today it is (13) that there are more than 2000 cafés and the number is (14) It won't be long before coffee is sold everywhere. You can already buy it in hospitals, motorway service stations, supermarkets and at tourist (15) throughout the country.
