

Sandra Cauffman was born on May 10, 1962, in San José, Costa Rica. She grew up in a poor family, but she worked very hard to achieve her dreams. In 1988, she began Her career at NASA, where she worked on important space missions, including missions to Mars and satellite programs. She _____ against Discrimination and economic difficulties to become an electrical engineer and physicist. Sandra Cauffman helped protect the planet by working on Earth science satellite programs that monitor the environment and climate. She also rescued young people from poverty. She _____ to students around the world and inspired many girls and young people to believe in themselves and follow their dreams. Through her work and example, she _____ opportunities for future generations and protected the dreams of young scientists.