

Milly's Blog: New Year Traditions around the World

Hello everyone!

I've been learning about amazing festivals. First, I learned about Chinese New Year in Hong Kong! On New Year's Day, special red clothes are worn by many people. Sweet dumplings are eaten... Red packets are given to children for good luck. Lion dances are performed in the streets.

Next, Japan! I learned about oseti-ryori... a special soup is cooked... In Spain, grapes are eaten at midnight. In Thailand, water is thrown at people. In other places, dragon boats are raced.

It is all so fascinating!
