

My Marble in Spoon Experience

Last Independence Day, my school held many traditional games. I decided to join the marble-in-spoon race. I felt nervous but excited.

First, all participants gathered at the school field. The teacher gave each of us a spoon and a marble. We had to put the marble on the spoon and walk to the finish line without dropping it.

When the teacher shouted "Start!", I began to walk slowly. I focused on the marble. Suddenly, my friend next to me dropped his marble. He looked frustrated.

After a few steps, my hand started shaking. The marble rolled to the edge of the spoon. I stopped for a second and balanced the marble again. Then I continued walking carefully.

Finally, I reached the finish line! I didn't drop the marble even once. I finished in third place. I didn't win first place, but I was very proud of myself. I learned that patience and focus are more important than speed.
