A Busy Day at the Mall

Last Saturday, there was a small emergency at a shopping mall. A little boy got lost and started to cry near the entrance. A security guard decided to look after the child while the workers searched for his parents. Meanwhile, the manager had to deal with many nervous customers because some stores suddenly closed for a few minutes. The situation quickly became a big problem for the mall staff.

At the same time, several people asked for help at the customer service desk because they did not understand what was happening. Some visitors stopped to look at the security screens, while another team of workers tried to solve the emergency. Everyone continued to wait for more information. Later, another customer also asked for help because she could not find her phone. In the end, the workers successfully dealt with the situation, and everybody waited for the stores to open again normally.
