Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions from 35 to 40.

The saying "A father is worth more than one hundred teachers" highlights how important a father's role is in a child's life. While teachers provide valuable academic knowledge, a father's influence goes beyond the classroom and deeply impacts a child's overall development.

A father helps shape a child's character and values. Unlike teachers, who focus on specific subjects, fathers offer life lessons and moral guidance. They share their experiences and work ethic, which can inspire children in ways that books alone cannot. This personal touch helps children understand the real world better and learn important life skills.

Fathers also affect how children feel about learning. When a father shows interest in what a child is doing and supports them, it helps build the child's confidence and desire to learn. This emotional support can make a big difference in how children handle challenges and stay motivated.

Moreover, a father's involvement creates a safe and supportive environment at home. This stability is important for a child's emotional well-being, which in turn helps them succeed in school and in life.

Overall, while teachers are essential for teaching academic subjects, a father provides a unique kind of education. His personal guidance, support, and values play a crucial role in a child's growth and happiness. The saying reminds us of the special and irreplaceable impact a father has on his child's life.
