Last summer, I had a wonderful trip to the countryside with my family. We stayed in a small house near a river. Every morning, we woke up early to enjoy the fresh air and peaceful environment. The sound of birds singing made me feel relaxed.

During the day, we went fishing and helped local farmers in the fields. I learned how to plant vegetables and take care of animals. Although the work was quite hard, I really enjoyed it because it was a new experience for me.

In the evening, we sat together and shared stories. There was no Internet or television, but we still felt happy. This trip helped me understand the value of simple life and family time. I hope I can visit the countryside again next year.
