Evaluate the following categories:

1. Grammar (0–10)

- Grammatical accuracy.
- Use of verb tenses.
- Subject-verb agreement.
- Use of articles, prepositions, and pronouns.
- Complexity of grammatical structures.

2. Vocabulary (0–10)

- Range of vocabulary.
- Accuracy of word choice.
- Vocabulary level.
- Repetition of words.

3. Organization and Coherence (0–10)

- Clarity of ideas.
- Paragraph organization.
- Use of linking words and transitions.
- Logical development of ideas.

4. Punctuation and Mechanics (0–10)

- Correct use of periods and commas.
- Capitalization.
- Spelling.
- Overall formatting.

5. Task Achievement (0–10)

- Fulfillment of the task requirements.
- Development of opinions or arguments.
- Relevance of the content.

After evaluating:

1. Identify the most important errors.
2. Explain why they are errors.
3. Correct the entire text.
4. Determine the most appropriate CEFR level:
 - A1
 - A2
 - B1
 - B2
 - C1
 - C2
5. Justify the classification using official CEFR descriptors.
6. Assign a total score out of 50 points.
7. Present the evaluation using the following format:

IMPORTANT:

- Be strict, like a real MET examiner.
- Do not overestimate the student's level.
- If the text contains many errors that affect accuracy, lower the score even if the message is understandable.
- A text with frequent errors but understandable communication typically corresponds to B1.
- A text with occasional errors and good organization may correspond to B2.
- Reserve C1 and C2 for texts demonstrating advanced grammatical control, sophisticated cohesion, and a wide range of vocabulary.
