When does it become a problem?

Sexting can be dangerous when:

- Private photos or videos are shared without permission.
- An adult asks a child for private pictures.
- Someone feels uncomfortable, pressured, or forced to send something.

What can we do if it became a problem?

- Tell a trusted adult, such as a parent, teacher, or school counselor.
- Do not share the photos or videos with other people.
- Block and report the person if they are making you feel uncomfortable.
- Ask for help if you feel scared, worried, or pressured.

What should we do if a private photo of a child or teenager has been shared?

- Do not take away their phone or internet access; they need support and communication.
- Remind them that this situation does not define their value or self-esteem.
- Ask teachers, school staff, or other trusted adults for help if needed.
- Consider legal action if the situation is serious.

- Stay calm and listen without blaming them.
- Make sure they feel supported and safe.
- Find out what happened and check if the photo is still online.
- Ask the person who shared the photo to delete it.
- Save evidence, such as messages or screenshots.
- Report the content on social media platforms.

Thank you for listening ! ♥

And as Eleanor Roosevelt said...

"No one can make you feel inferior without your consent."
