Reading

Read the texts and for questions 1-10, choose from the texts (A-D). Each text may be chosen more than once.

Which person mentions that:

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 1 being sociable is an important part of their job. .... | 6 they didn't succeed in their education. ....                      |
| 2 they sometimes find their work stressful. ....         | 7 they enjoy being creative. ....                                   |
| 3 their work is sometimes exhausting. ....               | 8 they like to watch other people succeed. ....                     |
| 4 they disliked a previous job. ....                     | 9 they had to take a special test to get their current job. ....    |
| 5 they run their own business. ....                      | 10 they've worked in the same position in different locations. .... |

A When I started working as a doctor in a public hospital, the long hours and difficult working conditions didn't come as a surprise to me. From what I heard during my studies, I was well aware what I was getting into. Still, though, the 12-hour shifts can be very tiring and I often get anxious about making the wrong decisions. But there are positives to my job, too. I get the opportunity to help people and even save lives. Seeing my patients recover and go home to their families gives me an enormous sense of achievement. I hope I will be in this job for many years to come.

B Ever since I was a teenager, I've loved doing people's hair and would always practise on my sister and friends. So, when I was 20, I studied for a diploma in hairdressing, passed with flying colours, and started work in a local salon. Now, 10 years later, I own my own salon and employ four people. For me, hairdressing is like an art form – I love coming up with new styles for my clients. You have to be good with people, though. Most of my clients like to chat while I'm doing their hair, so you need to be able to talk to people from all walks of life.

C It's hard to believe, but next month, I will start my twentieth year as a secondary school teacher. I got my first position as soon as I graduated from university and although I've changed schools a few times, it's still the only job I've ever done. That doesn't mean I find it easy, though. I often have to deal with badly-behaved children and demanding parents, but I never let those sorts of things stress me out. All in all, it's a very rewarding profession. I teach science, and get a huge sense of satisfaction from inspiring in my students a wonder for the world around us. Plus, of course, it's great to share their joy when they pass important state exams.

D For a variety of reasons I didn't do well at secondary school, which meant I couldn't get into university. At first, I tried being a waiter but couldn't stand it, so my dad, who was a taxi driver at the time, suggested I join his profession. First, though, I had to get my driving license, as well as pass a very difficult test called the 'Knowledge.' This requires you to know all the major streets in London! Luckily, I passed both and haven't looked back since. I've been driving a taxi for twenty years now, and I love it. I've even met a few famous personalities over the years. In fact, this time tomorrow, I'll be driving a Hollywood celebrity to the airport!

Game 3

Students play in groups of at least four. Two groups play against each other. Prepare sets of cards which have a job title and five associated words underneath. Give each group 20 cards. The cards are shuffled and placed faced down between the groups. Student A from group A picks up a card and tries to get their group to come up with the word at the top of the card without mentioning any of the associated words underneath. A student from the other groups looks over Student A's shoulder to make sure they don't use any of the associated words. If group A guesses the word, they keep the card, if not, or if Student A says any of the associated words, group B gets the card. The aim is to guess as many of the main words as possible in a certain time (1 or 2 minutes). Once the time is up, it is the next group's turn. Each student has a turn at describing the jobs on the cards. The group with the most cards at the end of the game is the winner.

Sample cards:

- ▶ SA: In this job you look after people who are ill. Often, you work in a health centre, but you're not a doctor.
- ▶ SB: Nurse!
