E-commerce is changing the main street and our shopping habits irrevocably. We tell ourselves that shopping online saves us time and money, and that it is a more comfortable way to shop. However, is that actually true? One of the most attractive aspects of online shopping is being able to do it in the comfort of your own home. Not having to go out into the cold, walk long distances, or deal with unpleasant salespeople holds a lot of appeal to most customers. Another advantage is simply the variety and quantity of products available. A website is obviously not limited by space as the bricks-and-mortar stores are. Furthermore, since online stores don't usually have to spend money on rent and are able to purchase larger quantities of each product, they tend to offer lower prices and better discounts than traditional businesses.

However, won't we be missing out on something if the main street stores disappear? What about the event of going shopping itself? Won't we miss the sociable, fun event of meeting with friends and browsing the stores together? Also, going shopping on the main street sometimes means walking around from place to place, which in itself can be very healthy and pleasant exercising. Finally, fans of e-commerce claim it saves us precious time, which could be better spent on more important things. Yet if the items purchased online turn out to be different from what was expected and have to be exchanged, or if packages are delayed or lost and need to be tracked, this may not be the case.

Perhaps there is room for both ways of shopping and we all just need to find the perfect balance that can be the most beneficial to our lives.

1. One advantage of online shopping is that there are more products to choose from.

A) True B) False C) Not Given

2. One of the dangers of online shopping is spending too much money.

3. Customers regret their purchases more often when they shop online.

4. Both types of shopping can be time-consuming.

A) True B) False C) Not Given

5. Traditional shopping will soon disappear.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

B. Read Mariela's story. Then read the questions and choose the correct answers.

A life-changing moment
by Mariela Gomez

We have all experienced, or will at some point experience, certain events that completely change either our views on life or the paths we take in it. In my case, an event that dramatically altered the direction of my life was a chance encounter with a stranger.

When I was about thirty years old, I was in a great place in my life. I had been happily married for a few years and I was fully dedicated to my career as a lawyer. My husband and I had talked briefly about having children but had made a deliberate decision not to. We had concluded that, if we wanted successful careers and fun social lives, we wouldn't be able to have children.

One day, one of my nephews had a minor operation and stayed in the hospital for a few days. The day I visited Lucas, my brother wasn't at the hospital, but Barbara, an aunt of his wife's, was. Barbara was a very direct woman and, in the briefest of conversations, this woman I had never met before asked me whether I planned to have children. The question was a little awkward, but I wound up telling her that we had no intention of having children. She looked me in the eye and said that I could be making the biggest mistake of my life. She left shortly after and I never met her again until a few years later. When I did, I was carrying my daughter Sophia in my arms.

The conversation with Barbara made me question whether I really didn't wish to be a mother. I realized I wanted to, and I am eternally grateful to her for speaking to me in such an honest way. I wouldn't be the happy mother I am today if I hadn't been fortunate enough to meet Barbara that day.

6. How could Mariela be described at the time of the event in the story?

A) A woman whose career was the most important thing in her life.
B) A woman who was very close to her family, especially to her brother.
C) A woman who seemed satisfied with her job and her relationships.

7. Before the event, why had Mariela and her husband decided not to have children?

A) They wanted to dedicate their time mostly to their work.
B) They enjoyed spending time with other children in the family.
C) They thought that their lives would be better without children.

8. Who was Barbara?

A) A relative of Mariela's.
B) Someone Mariela didn't know.
C) A very shy and reserved person.

9. How could the conversation between Barbara and Mariela be described?

A) It was a strange conversation for Mariela, but it made her think.
B) It was a long conversation that made Mariela think about her values.
C) It was an interesting conversation about Lucas and other children in the family.

10. How does Mariela feel about the event now?

A) She feels lucky for having had the chance encounter.
B) She questions why moments like this happen to people.
C) She thinks it was the reason why she regrets becoming a mother.
