Internet for my Job

A: Hey.
B: Hey buddy.
A: How's it going?
B: Well. Youself?
A: Not bad. I haven't seen you in a while.
B: Yes, I've been busy on the internet.
A: Really? On Facebook and Twitter?
B: No. Well, I definitely spend time on them, but that's not how I spend most of my time.
A: Oh/What are you doing on the internet?
B: I'm starting my own website.
A: Cool!
B: Yes, I'm excited about it.
A: What's the website going to be?
B: Well, I can't giving too many details out about it but I'm close to launching.
A: Come on, you can't tell me anything?
B: I just think I have a good idea and I don't want it getting out there before my site launches.
A: We've known each other for years. I won't tell anyone.
B: OK, I'll tell you that it's basically the next Facebook.
A: Wow. That's ambitious.
B: Yes, I'm confident in my product and I know how the internet works.
A: That's cool. I'm excited for you.
B: Thanks. I should actually get back to working on it now.
A: Yes, you must have a lot to do.
B: Yes, I have to do a lot. I'll e-mail you when it's ready.
A: Great! See you later.
B: Later.
