Roosevelt and Environmental Conservation

Choose the correct option in each question in order to become the Champion of conservation.

1. What does conservation mean in the context of Roosevelt's presidency?

A. Using natural resources without limits

B. Protecting and managing natural resources so they can be used responsibly in the future

C. Stopping all economic activity

D. Giving all forests to private companies

2. A company wants to cut down a large area of forest to produce timber.

The company will create jobs and provide valuable wood, but destroying the entire forest could damage wildlife and leave fewer resources for future generations. What would you recommend?

A. Allow the company to cut down every tree.

B. Ban all logging forever.

C. Allow controlled logging while protecting and managing part of the forest.

D. Sell the forest to the company.

3.Hunters are killing large numbers of wild animals in America's forests.

Roosevelt is concerned that some species could disappear. What should his administration do?

A. Allow unlimited hunting.

B. Create protected areas and regulate hunting.

C. Eliminate all wild animals from forests.

D. Ignore the problem.

4.Roosevelt believes some of America's most important natural landscapes should be protected for future generations. Which option best represents his conservation approach?

A. Sell public lands to the highest bidder.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

B. Protect important natural areas as public lands and parks.

C. Allow companies to develop every natural area.

D. Close all forests to the public.

5. "You Are the President!"

Choose the best conservation decisions:

Situation A: A forest contains valuable timber.

A. Cut everything down.

B. Manage the forest so timber can be harvested without destroying it.

Situation B: A beautiful area contains rare wildlife.

A. Protect the area.

B. Allow unlimited hunting.

Situation C: A company wants to develop public land.

A. Consider economic benefits but protect important natural resources.

B. Give the company unlimited access.

LIVEWORKSHEETS