New year, old customs

by Travel Editor, Lauren Rodriquez

Have you ever made a New Year's resolution? Maybe you have decided to learn a new language or do more exercise? You are not alone. In many cultures, people choose to change something about their life at the beginning of the year. And all over the world, people celebrate the new year with interesting customs.

My favorite traditions come from Mexico and other Latin American countries. For example, at midnight on New Year's Eve in many Spanish-speaking cultures, everyone eats twelve grapes – one grape for each month of the year. People say that eating the grapes brings good fortune for the new year. And don't be surprised if your friend from Peru wants to walk around the outside of his or her house with heavy luggage. Traditionally, if you complete this challenge, you will be a successful traveler in the new year. Would you like to go on a dream vacation next year? Then try it!

Cleaning the house is perhaps the most common new year's tradition. From Mexico to Japan, people sweep their homes from top to bottom. Some people believe this removes bad luck and allows good luck to enter the house. In other countries, such as England and Iran, the cleaning happens later in the year, so it's called "spring cleaning." In Iran, just before the March spring festival, people empty their houses of all their furniture. They clean the house from top to bottom, fix broken furniture, or replace old items. People bring flowers and herbs indoors too so their homes smell fresh and clean.

New Year is often celebrated with friends, so my final story is from Denmark. If you are in Denmark on New Year's Day, you will probably see piles of broken plates outside front doors. What's going on? Well, traditionally, people take their old or broken plates and smash them on their friend's front door. It brings good luck to your friend. It's a lot of fun too! So, a big pile of broken plates means you are a popular person.

Enjoy the new year fun, wherever you are in the world. I hope you are ready with your grapes, luggage, and plates!
