

Countable and Uncountable noun

Full Name: _____

READING COMPREHENSION: A RECIPE DILEMMA

Sofia and Mateo are planning to prepare a traditional family dinner tonight. They want to cook pasta with tomato sauce and a fresh green salad. However, when they checked the pantry, they realized they didn't have any olive oil left, and there was very little salt in the shaker.

"Do we have any tomatoes?" asked Mateo. Sofia opened the fridge and counted: "Yes, we have some tomatoes—about six large ones—and a few cloves of garlic, but we don't have much cheese left."

They also needed beverages for their guests. Mateo mentioned, "I bought some fruit juice yesterday, but we don't have any bottles of sparkling water." Sofia suggested buying a slice of cheesecake for dessert, but Mateo preferred making fruit salad since they already had some apples, a few bananas, and some honey in the cupboard. Before leaving for the supermarket, they made a detailed shopping list to ensure they wouldn't forget any important ingredients.

Questions

1. Choose the grammatically correct sentence based on the text.

Single Choice

2. Complete the sentence according to the passage: Sofia checked the fridge and found that they had _____ cheese left for the pasta.

Single Choice

3. Which of the following options correctly fills in the blanks? Mateo checked the drinks: he had already bought _____ fruit juice, but they didn't have _____ sparkling water in the fridge.

Single Choice

4. Complete the sentence with the correct count/uncount quantifier context: Regarding the ingredients for the sauce, Sofia counted _____ tomatoes and _____ garlic cloves.

Single Choice

5. Complete the statement with the appropriate partitive expression: Sofia considered getting _____ cheesecake for dessert instead of making a fruit salad.

Single Choice

6. From the text, it can be inferred that Sofia and Mateo:

Single Choice