

Omar is from Ecuador, and this is his second year in the United States. He lives in his brother's house while he works and studies English. Every morning, Omar goes to his job at a grocery store. He helps customers find what they need and carries people's bags to their cars. In the afternoon, he goes to his English class. Omar likes his teacher's energy and his classmates' different stories about their countries. At home, Omar cooks his mother's recipes and shares food with his brother's family. He misses his parents, but he talks to them on video calls every weekend. Omar is very busy but he is happy to have his brother and his brother's family close.
