A day at the park

Last Saturday, Sarah went to the park. She decided to visit a park on Sutera Street, which is known as Greenfield Park. She woke up early, wore her running shoes, and left her house. The weather was nice. At the park, Sarah met her friend, Emily. Tammy couldn't join.

Sarah and Emily started with a slow jog around the park. They enjoyed the fresh air and the lovely trees. After jogging, they found a quiet place under a big tree and sat down to rest. Sarah took a book and began to read, feeling happy. Later, they had a picnic near the lake. Emily brought sandwiches, fruit, and juice but they forgot to bring cakes. They had their meal while talking and laughing. Sarah felt that the picnic was her favourite part.

In the afternoon, they rented bicycles for RM 10, but they only paid RM 5 after a discount. They rode around the park, trying new paths and enjoying the view. As the sun began to set, they returned the bicycles and sat on the grass, watching the sky turn orange and pink.

Sarah felt happy for having such a great day. She knew how good it is to spend time outside, exercise, and enjoy nature. As she walked home, she decided to visit the park more often.
