Analyze the Situation and Give Your Opinion

A reporter interviews a teenager who became famous after a tragic event. The interview becomes viral, but later the teenager says the media attention destroyed their mental health.

Did the journalist cross a line?

A news channel used a shocking headline to attract attention, but the article itself was not very important.

What problem can this create?

With the development of AI-generated articles, photos, and videos, it is becoming harder to know what is real online.

How might this affect trust in journalism in the future?
