

Future Perspectives & Projections

CEFR Level: B1–B2

Academic English Seminar • B1–B2 Level Grammar Practice

Student: _____ Date: _____ Score: _____

Future Simple (will + base)

Spontaneous decisions, predictions, and basic scheduled intentions.

Future Continuous (will be + -ing)

Actions in progress at a specific time in the future, or routine events.

Future Perfect (will have + past part.)

Actions completed before a definite milestone or deadline in the future.

Part 1 Future Continuous vs. Simple Future Complete each sentence using will + base verb OR will be + -ing.

- Please do not call Professor Lawson at 10:00 AM tomorrow; she _____ (deliver) the keynote lecture to the faculty.
- "The printer in the media lab has completely run out of toner." – "Don't worry, I _____ (replace) the cartridge immediately."
- This time next semester, our research cohort _____ (conduct) fieldwork in Latin America.
- I think more university courses _____ (adopt) automated assessment systems over the next decade.
- At tomorrow's seminar, Marcus _____ (present) his findings while Dr. Wright moderates the discussion.

Part 2 Future Perfect vs. Simple Future

Complete each sentence using will + base verb OR will have + past participle.

- By the end of this academic year, Elena _____ (complete) all eighty required credits for her degree.
- If our committee reviews the draft tonight, we _____ (send) the finalized proposal to the dean tomorrow morning.
- Do not worry about the conference tickets; by Friday afternoon, the department _____ (process) all student reimbursements.
- The climate panel believes global sea levels _____ (rise) noticeably if emissions targets are not enforced.
- By 2030, our engineering team _____ (construct) three zero-emission research pavilions across campus.

Part 3 Future Continuous vs. Future Perfect

Choose between will be + -ing (in progress) and will have + past participle (completed).

- By the time the guest speaker arrives, the organizing committee _____ (set up) all audiovisual equipment in the auditorium.
- When you step off the plane in Geneva, your host supervisor _____ (wait) for you in the arrivals terminal.
- By next July, Dr. Henderson _____ (teach) comparative literature at this university for thirty consecutive years.
- At 8:30 PM on Thursday, our study group _____ (review) the practice exam chapters in the library lounge.
- Don't submit your paper yet; the peer review board _____ not _____ (publish) the formatting criteria until Monday.