PARTE 5: LECTURA LITERAL

Sofia's Unpredictable Day

Today is Friday, and Sofia has a strict schedule because her cousin Mariana is visiting from Medellín. According to Sofia's calendar, she is meeting Mariana at the central bus station at 3:00 PM. After that, they are going sightseeing in the historic downtown district, La Candelaria, this evening.

However, unexpected problems began this morning. First, Sofia woke up late and could not find her house keys. After searching for twenty minutes, her brother found them under the sofa and gave them back to her. Then, Sofia had to catch the 1:30 PM city bus. Unfortunately, she missed the bus because a delivery truck blocked her street.

Sofia decided to take the subway instead, but the digital display announced that the train was late due to electrical repairs. She called Mariana: "I am stuck in traffic near the station, but I will pick you up as soon as I arrive!"

14. Where is Sofia meeting Mariana at 3:00 PM?

- A. At a historic museum in La Candelaria.

- B. Sofia's brother.
- C. Sofia's mother.

PARTE 6: LECTURA CRÍTICA E INFERENCIAL

Urban Mobility and Modern Time Management

In big cities like Bogotá, Cali, and Medellín, coordinating plans is challenging. Young people frequently text messages like "I am stuck in traffic" or "The train is late."

Instead of canceling their plans, people adapt quickly and offer help: "Don't worry, I will give you a ride" or "I will help you while you wait." Group activities such as going camping or going dancing are organized in real time through chat apps. Even when someone has an unexpected emergency or gets lost, these daily travel obstacles teach young people resilience, adaptability, and collaborative problem-solving.

18. What is the author's main purpose in this text?

- A. To criticize students for arriving late to class.
- B. To explain how city transport problems encourage quick communication and cooperation.
- C. To suggest that people stop using public transportation.
- D. To explain how to drive cars in big cities.

19. What do spontaneous offers like "I will give you a ride" show?

- A. That public buses are always empty.
- B. That traffic problems are disappearing completely.
- C. That people use language to maintain trust and help each other during delays.
- D. That only taxi drivers can help students.

20. According to the text, how do daily transportation delays affect young people?

- A. Delays help them develop problem-solving skills and adaptability.

- B. Delays make them cancel all their friendships.
- C. Delays force them to stay home and stop doing outdoor hobbies.
- D. Delays prevent them from using their mobile phones.
