Sam's Useful Idea

Sam Carter is eleven years old and lives in a town near Liverpool. He walks to school every morning with his younger sister Amy. Their journey usually takes about fifteen minutes.

Last winter Sam noticed that the road near the school was often covered with empty bottles, paper cups and plastic bags. The rubbish made the street look untidy, and some plastic bags sometimes blew into the school garden.

Sam spoke to his teacher, Mr Brown, and suggested organising a clean-up day. Mr Brown liked the idea, but he explained that the pupils needed gloves and large rubbish bags. Sam wrote a short message for parents and put it on the school website.

On Saturday morning twenty pupils and several parents came to the school. They worked in small groups. Sam's group cleaned the area near the bus stop. Another group collected rubbish around the sports field.

After two hours the streets looked much cleaner. The local café gave the helpers hot chocolate and sandwiches. Next month the pupils are going to make colourful posters asking people not to leave rubbish in the street.
