Turmeric

More than just an ingredient in curry, this tasty, bright yellow spice also has several health-improving properties. So, why is turmeric so good for you?

We are frequently told that colourful plant foods are good for our health because of their colouring and turmeric is no different. It has a range of health benefits due to the bright yellow colour.

Turmeric has been used for 4,000 years to help with swelling and pain, and studies show it may also help your memory, delay aging and it is good for your heart. However, not everyone benefits from eating and taking turmeric. There is still a lot for us to learn about this spice.

Task 3

Read the text and answer questions 15 – 21.

Become an apprentice

Apprentices will receive both training in a job and a study place at a college.

You'll:

- work with experienced staff
- gain job skills
- earn a wage and get holiday pay
- get time for study of your chosen skill (usually one day a week).

Levels of apprenticeship

There are 4 levels of apprenticeship: intermediate, advanced, higher and degree. Some apprenticeships may also give you other qualifications, such as a diploma. Apprenticeships take 1 to 5 years to complete depending on the level.

Who can apply?

You can apply for an apprenticeship while you're still at school. To start one, you'll need to be:

- 16 or over by the end of the summer holidays
- living in England
- not in full-time education.

How to apply

There are 3 simple steps to applying for an apprenticeship:

- Search for an apprenticeship.
- Sign in or create an account.
- Complete and send your application.

The National Careers Service can help you with advice on writing applications and what to do at interviews. Look at www.nationalcareersservice.com
