David doesn't like school lessons very much. He loves sport and art but he thinks maths and English are very difficult. His father always told him, 'You must study hard at school. Subjects like maths and English are important.' But David didn't believe him.

One day, David was reading his town's newspaper when he saw something very interesting. He went to find his father. 'Dad, look at this! Some famous English footballers are going to come here to play. It's very exciting! Can we watch the game?' His father was very excited too and phoned the sports centre to buy some tickets, but there weren't any. Everyone wanted to be there, and lots of people already had their tickets. David was very sad.

The next day, David was at school when his teacher said, 'One of the English footballers is going to visit you all tomorrow! You can ask him questions. Perhaps he'll play football with you too!' The footballer was called Robert. He brought red and white T-shirts for all the children which was very kind. But David couldn't ask him any questions because he didn't know the English words. But it was great to meet him and David was very happy when Robert kicked a ball to him! David studies harder in his English lessons now!'
