BE A GOOD FOLLOWER

Every company has leaders. The leaders are responsible for making decisions and managing teams. The people on the teams are followers. They have to work together or alone to do jobs that the leaders tell them to do. It is common to hear people talk about how to become a good leader, but followers are just as important. In fact, before you can become a good leader, you have to learn to be a good follower. How can you do this?

First, understand the goals of your organization. If you can understand what your boss or company is trying to do, then you will see in what way your work is important to the organization as a whole. This will keep you more interested in your work and more satisfied when you finish each job. As you achieve your goals, the company you work for is achieving theirs as well.

Second, listen carefully to instructions so that you understand what you have to do. You must be honest. If something is not clear to you, it is better for your boss to repeat the instructions than for you to do the job the wrong way.

Good followers also learn to get along with others at work even if they have different opinions. By being cheerful and helpful, you will build good relationships with your coworkers. If you need help in the future, they may help you in return. Finally, good followers need to be brave. If the leaders make any mistakes, the followers need to tell them.

If you can develop these skills, you will not only be a good follower. You will also be learning how to become a good leader in the future.

1 What does the writer say about good leaders?

A They were good followers before they were good leaders.

B They are more important than followers.

C They do particular jobs in teams.

2 According to the writer, if you understand the goals of the organization,

A your boss will give you more important work to do.

B you will understand the value of your own work.

C you will like your boss more.

3 According to the writer, why is it a good idea to help coworkers?

A They will become more cheerful.

B They will make fewer mistakes.

C They might do something for you in the future.

4 Which is one quality of a good follower?

A They are good at leading others.

B They help people who work in different companies.

C They tell the bosses when the bosses make a mistake
