II. For each question, choose the correct answer.

Amazing balloon flight

Tom Morgan flew 25 kilometres across South Africa using only 100 party balloons.

Tom Morgan is a British man who started a club planning adventures for people. His idea is to give people some danger in their lives, as he thinks we don't have enough of that these days. The adventures he plans include races across various countries using unusual types of transport.

Last year Tom went to Africa for a crazy adventure with some friends. The plan was to tie 100 party balloons to a chair Tom was sitting in, and make it fly into the air. Tom's not the first person to do this. Jonathan Trappe from the USA has done it, but it was an article in an adventure magazine that made Tom want to try it.

Tom chose the country of Botswana for his adventure because it has lots of empty space and isn't near the sea. However, the weather was so windy there that they lost lots of balloons, so they went to South Africa instead. This time, the flight was a great success.

Tom says the views from 2,400 metres up were amazing, and remembers how quiet it was. However, he spent most of the time worrying about what to do if he flew too high and how to get back down.

One reason Tom did his balloon flight was to check if it's possible to fly using party balloons. Now he knows it is, he's planning the first party balloon air race in Africa. He hopes lots of his club members will enter.

   B. surprised to have good views
   C. scared about what might happen
5. What is Tom working on at the moment?
