

Self-published author hits one million Kindle sales

When John Locke had the inspiration for his novel, he wasn't sure if a publisher would back him so he decided to publish the book <sup>1</sup>_____ using Kindle's direct publishing. He was soon rewarded <sup>2</sup>_____; people <sup>3</sup>_____ bought his novel at only $0.99 each, making it a best-seller. Before he knew it, he had made the best-seller list at Amazon, having sold more than one million e-books for Kindle. <sup>4</sup>_____, this prompted the publishing of his next title 'How I sold a million e-books <sup>5</sup>_____' – a how-to guide for other would-be writers who may have similar ideas. It's a title which could <sup>6</sup>_____ guarantee the writer yet another million sales.

Complete the story with the adverbials in the box.

for his idea   on his own   quite possibly in five months   readily   not surprisingly