READING

Mărțișor is a Romanian celebration marking the beginning of spring, on March the 1st. Mărțișor, mart and mărțiguș are all names for the red and white string with hanging tassel customarily given on the 1st day of March. In the Romanian folklore, seasons are given symbolic colours: spring is red, summer is green or yellow, autumn is black and winter is white. That is why one can say that the Martisor thread, knitted in white and red, is a symbol of passing, from the cold white winter to the lively spring, associated with fire and life.

Giving this object (Mărțișor) to the people is an old Romanian custom. It is believed that the wearer will be strong and healthy for the year to come. Women wear it pinned to their clothes, close to their hearts, until the last day of March, when they put it in a fruit-tree. There are many other beliefs about March in Romania. Before March 1st, women choose one of the first nine days of March; the weather on that day would predict how the year will be for them.
