Hammurabi's Code

Set of laws that governed life in the Babylonian empire. Each law follows the same pattern, first the offense and then the punishment. Read the laws and find the punishment.

If someone accuses another person for a crime they didn't commit	the builder should fix the wall with their own money.
If someone breaks another person's bone,	the accused can take the house of the accusator.
If someone practices robbery,	his/her eye shall be hurt.
If a builder builds a house and a wall cracks,	his/her bone shall be broken.
If someone opens a canal of irrigation and the water carries away destroying another field,	he/she shall go to jail.
If someone hurts another person's eye,	they should pay for the grains of the other field.

LIVEWORKSHEETS