Everyone you knew was supposed <sup>2</sup> _____ conform to the same standard of wealth and social status. But the bond <sup>3</sup> _____ the two friends was stronger than the prejudice and the malice. Next month they both turn thirty, and they will <sup>4</sup> _____ celebrating their birthdays together. They <sup>5</sup> _____ just booked a table for the party. And they still count <sup>6</sup> _____ each other in all difficult situations.

8 Complete the text with words formed from the words in CAPITALS.

I've just seen a great film. The main character is an ambitious young man from a poor family who's trying to make his way in a big corporation. His colleagues look down on him, because he doesn't come from a privileged background as they do. At the same time, they are

(COINCIDE) that the hero has a secret: he's got a <sup>3</sup> _____ (CRIME) record from when he was a teenager. They try to use it against him. Only one fair and <sup>4</sup> _____
found the portrayal of relations in the corporate world convincing and <sup>6</sup> _____ (IMPRESS), if sometimes shocking.
