2. Read the text and complete the missing information in the table. Write one more piece of information about birthday celebrations in Ecuador.

Birthdays are cool! We get nice presents, eat delicious cake, and play with friends and family. But birthday celebrations are different around the world.

In Mexico for example, they do not sing the "Happy Birthday" song, but they sing "Las Mañanitas."

In China, people eat noodles.

In Jamaica, the birthday boy or girl needs to be careful and pay attention so their friends and family don't cover them with flour by surprise. Birthdays are always fun!

AND or BUT

"And" connects matching ideas.

"But" connects opposing ideas.

Connect your ideas with and or but

- Use and for extra information

E.g.: We eat a delicious cake and play with friends.

- Use but for different information

E.g.: They don't sing the Happy Birthday song, but they sing "Las Mañanitas".

AND is used to join two events

- The subject of the event is the same
Example.: He sat down and had lunch.
- The subject of the event is different, we put a comma before and.
Ex.: She got up, and he cooked breakfast.
- Sheila is very kind and is my friend.
(we expect the second idea)

BUT is used to connect events when we do not expect the second event.

- When the subject of the event is the same, we don't repeat the subject.
They ran but missed the train.
- When the subject of the events is different, we put a comma before but.
Julia can drive, but Sonia can't
- Lucy was very tall but she wasn't nice.
(we don't expect the second idea)

3. Complete the sentences with AND or BUT. (sometimes both are possible)
