

Granny: we read a story before bed?

Children: Can it be a?

G: Well.

There once was a planet on the verge

That peoplewith greed and construction.

The people built factories,

Leaving animals, with only death and despair.

The rivers, the fish in all of the seas.

The planet was dying and

The Earth was dying and very,

Why don't you finish the story?

C: Ummm, well...

One day, the people realised that all those things were very bad. They things and not kill everything anymore.

It wasn't easy but then more and more —and together they planted trees, and pretty plants all over the world -- even in their houses. And everyone rode their bike to school! They planted so many trees that the, and, and, they were hap -- and the orangutans! They were all happy again in the new jungles and forests.

People worked hard and the plastics out of the seas...and the turtles had a party and everybody Everybody stopped doing all those horrible things that they did before and started looking after the planet until it was all
..... again.

G. That was a lovely story. Now,

C. Did people those things?

G. Let's so.
