When we first walked into that room, the 1st thing that we _____ was the sound of _____ water. You can see it, first, dripping from the ceiling, large _____ on the floor and there's _____ that comes _____ that because they tell you that anything that you should _____ is do not touch the water. There is nothing that is more _____ than the water itself.

What was _____ is how did those masks get into this room. It was really shocking to see so many of them 'cause you walked into the room, you kind of... you know, you turn around and there is _____ and it was _____.

I think that you'd expect when you _____ like this that you want people to feel somewhat _____ or you want people to feel like that there's a place that time forgot or you even want them to _____ for the people in a subject matter that happened in general, and that's not what I'm aiming for... I'm actually aiming for the opposite.... So, I want them to find the beauty in the _____, I want them to find the beauty in the _____ and the _____.

I thought the place would feel really sad to me, it would feel really _____. I didn't want to have expectations, I just wanted to see for myself and have the feelings once I get to the place.

Once I got to there, yes, it's scary, it's a little eerie but at the same time it was very _____. It was very nature is starting to _____ the buildings and I didn't feel that I needed to be sad, I think. Bad things have happened but if anything....it just seemed very quiet and very peaceful and just, yeah, nature taken everything back....
