Read the following passage

Geometry is the study of two-dimensional shapes, three dimensional figures and all the various positions, combinations, sizes and shapes they can have. Geometry deals with a sense of space. It requires people to reason and problem-solve.

Geometry is found in everyday life, especially in art, science, architecture, sports and more. An ancient Greek name Euclid is known as the father of geometry. Much of the geometry studied by students is based on his ideas. His ideas are very important for further geometrical studies in high school and college.

There are many important mathematical terms to know to be successful in geometry. A ray is a part of a line. It has only one endpoint, and it extends forever in one direction. A line it's a straight path of points that continues on forever in two directions.

Lines are called different things depending on their position in relationship to other lines. Two lines are parallel to each other when they stay the same distance apart and never cross. Two lines are perpendicular to each other when they cross to form four right angles. Two lines are intersecting lines when one line crosses the other, and the share a point.

Match the following concepts

The father of geometry is:

Lines that never cross each other

A ray is a line:

The study of 2D and 3D figures

Parallel lines

Lines that cross each other

Intersecting lines

Euclide

Geometry is

Has one endpoint, and it extends forever.
