

Present Simple or Present Continuous?

1. Group the following adverbs of time in the correct column:

always, at the moment, regularly, usually, this morning, this afternoon, now, today, never, often, this year, sometimes, these days, at present, every day, every week, every month

Present Simple	Present Continuous

True or false?

The Present Simple is used to express activities taking place at this moment.

We use the Present Continuous for actions about to follow in the immediate future.

We use the Present Simple for permanent situations.

We use the Present Continuous to express universal truths.

We use the Present Continuous for pre-arranged activities and future plans.

The Present Simple is used to express activities, which have become regular, routine and habitual.

Make sentences to provide supporting examples for three of the above statements.

My mate Ella and me

She reads news websites on her laptop every day. I play computer games on my laptop every day. I have a dog. She doesn't like dogs. She has a cat. I go to the park with my dog every Saturday. She goes shopping with her friends. She plays the piano really well. I don't play a musical instrument. BUT we both like music and dancing. We're very different, but we spend a lot of time together.
