The Farmer and the Vegetable Cart

One day in a town called “The Bridge” a conflict happened. This was odd because all the citizens get along and they had never been in a conflict before. Turns out two farmers were arguing about a cart full of vegetables. One farmer said it was his and the other said that it was his. They decided to take this matter into the hands of the town’s judge. The judge was known for his way of being fair with everyone.

The judge decided that the cart be cut in two and that each farmer would take half.

Talk with your classmates and answer the following questions.

- Who is the authority in the town called “The Bridge”?
- Did the judge make the right decision? Why?
- What decision would you make? Remember that both farmers need the cart.
- In your city, which authorities are in charge of making justice?
