

1) A bit of music history. Read the text and do the following activities:

The Jazz Age started in the 1920's. It resulted from social, political and economic sufferings of black people in the southern cities of the USA, most notably in New Orleans. In its beginnings, jazz music was especially popular among poor people without power. However, its lyrics were not about money but about the reality of everyday life. Close to blues, jazz has quick rhythms and it often involves improvisation.

After many years, jazz became popular, profitable and international. The artists who created this music speak about their ideas, problems and desires through the music, the clothes, the lifestyle and the philosophy.

Hip hop is a cultural movement that began among urban African Americans and Latinos in the Bronx in the early 1970's, and it has since then spread around the USA. The now so called Hip hop Age was born while young people were demanding for democracy, justice and equality. Hip hop mixes reggae and rap and its lyrics contain pieces of funk and soul. Similar to jazz, hip hop is known for its strong rhythms and improvisation. Also, hip hop as a form of dance is becoming more popular. It is a dance without any limitations to positions and is an expression of how a dancer feels on the inside.
