Task 2: Phrasal Verbs (Textbook pages 30 and 31)

Phrasal verbs are phrases that combine a VERB with a PREPOSITION or an ADVERB or even BOTH. This phrase functions as a VERB whose MEANING is different from the combined meanings of the individual words. (adapted from Merriam Webster.com)

There are many examples of phrasal verbs. Let's take a look at some phrasal verbs related to the topic in this unit.

- ▶ GET AHEAD: In order to GET AHEAD at her work as a singer, Gaga is participating in a lot of projects.
- ▶ DRAW UP: To be successful, Cristiano first DREW UP his goals and made a plan.
- ▶ DO OVER: Gaga's first album had many mistakes, so she DID all the work OVER, corrected her errors and became famous.
- ▶ RUN OUT OF: When good artists RUN OUT OF time for a project, they work over time.
- ▶ CARRY ON: Even if you feel tired, you must CARRY ON doing what you love.
- ▶ COME ACROSS: Scientists CAME ACROSS the cure for the virus as they were working with rats in a lab.
- ▶ LOOK BACK: Don't LOOK BACK in time anymore and concentrate in your opportunities now.

1. After reading the examples in the chart, it's time to figure out their meanings. Match the phrasal verbs with their meanings.

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|---|
| draw up ☐ | ☐ be successful in the work that you do |
| look back ☐ | ☐ prepare something in writing like plans or a formal document |
| come across ☐ | ☐ repeat something |

| do over ☐ | ☐ continue |
| run out of ☐ | ☐ discover something by accident |
| get ahead ☐ | ☐ think about something that happened in the past |

Write next to each phrasal verb in the chart its corresponding definition.

Phrasal Verb	Definition
draw up look back come across carry on do over run out of get ahead

Task 3.1. Read the following text
Who inspires you?

A woman who has recently inspired me is Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, who is the youngest woman ever to be elected to Congress. She's going to become a fantastic role model for both young women and young men.

A woman who really inspires me is Leslie Feinberg. She was a feminist and gender theorist. She was brave enough to live her truth in an unforgiving world, to live as a butch lesbian in '70s and '80s America despite all the discrimination and violence that she faced.

My friend Kate is a real inspiration to me. When I first met her she had a stable, regular job. Then she surprised all of us by moving to Guatemala to help young women who are experiencing sexual violence find a place of safety in a refuge.

A woman who inspires me is Marie Colvin. She was an American journalist and paid the ultimate price for discovering the truth. She was killed in Syria doing her job and was perhaps the bravest woman to ever be a journalist.

JK Rowling. When she wrote the Harry Potter books she was in a really difficult place in her life. She managed to make this contribution, a massive contribution to children's literature.

A woman that inspires me is my grandmother. She moved from London to South Africa and worked at a newspaper. She was a kind, loving, amazing human being and she set up a life for myself and my family.

Phillis Wheatley. She was born in West Africa and was sold as a slave at the age of eight and she went to the US, where she learned to read and write. When she was 20 she wrote her first book of poetry – and it was the first book to be published by an African American woman ever – and lived the rest of her life as a free woman.

A woman that inspires me is my aunt. She's had a couple of really rough years with my uncle having ALS and she always puts on a brave face and she always puts her family first and is just always super positive.

Another woman that inspires me is Dian Fossey, just a phenomenal woman, when conservation wasn't cool it wasn't trendy and she actually got killed for something that she believed in and she just really inspires me, and I cry every time I hear the music.

A woman who's really inspired me is my mum. A woman that has inspired me my whole life is my mother, Anita. A woman that inspires me is my mum. Because she has always told me to go after what I want in life and take every opportunity given to me. She always inspires me to go after what I want, no matter what roadblocks stand in my way. She's tough but caring and she's a great fashionista. She was the first person in her family to get a degree and she got that degree when she went back to school at 36 years old, and she was pregnant with me. Also she has the best chorizo pasta recipe and she's passed it down to me, so, yeah, for that I am thankful. She just inspires me with her capability basically.

Task 3.2. Read the names in the box and write down them next to each profession.
