

1 Match the examples to the meanings.

- 1 This city will become more crowded in the future.
 - 2 You might find that you enjoy this game more as time goes on.
 - 3 I'm going to pass all my exams this year – I've studied really hard.
 - 4 You'll be living in a different country this time next month.
 - 5 Dan may well be late home this evening – he's got football training.
-
- a a strong possibility in the future
 - b a possibility in the future
 - c a general prediction about the future
 - d a prediction about something in progress in the future
 - e a prediction based on something we already know

2 Choose the correct future tense to complete the sentences.

- 1 I 'll watch / 'll be watching that new show on TV at 8.15 tonight.
- 2 Don't tell Steven your bad news. He won't like / be liking it.
- 3 This time next week, you 'll lie / 'll be lying on a beach in the sunshine.
- 4 I don't think this new product will sell / will be selling very well.
- 5 Don't buy her that book. She might / could not like romances.
- 6 Have a taste of this sauce – you 're going to / may well like it even though it's very spicy.

3 Complete the second sentence so that it has a similar meaning to the first sentence, using the word given. Sometimes more than one answer is possible.

- 1 Perhaps we'll meet up later. MIGHT
We later.
- 2 I think it's very possible that Danny will forget to invite somebody. WELL
Danny
to invite somebody.
- 3 You might become quite rich because of your business idea. MAKE
Your business idea
..... quite rich.
- 4 Attending university is not something she wants to do. GOING
She
to university.
- 5 At this time, she'll still be awake. SLEEPING
She
at this time.