1 Match the examples to the meanings.

1 This city will become more crowded in the future.

2 You might find that you enjoy this game more as time goes on.

3 I'm going to pass all my exams this year – I've studied really hard.

4 You'll be living in a different country this time next month.

5 Dan may well be late home this evening – he's got football training.

a a strong possibility in the future

b a possibility in the future

c a general prediction about the future

d a prediction about something in progress in the future

e a prediction based on something we already know

2 Choose the correct future tense to complete the sentences.

1 I 'll watch / 'll be watching that new show on TV at 8.15 tonight.

2 Don't tell Steven your bad news. He won't like / be liking it.

3 This time next week, you 'll lie / 'll be lying on a beach in the sunshine.

4 I don't think this new product will sell / will be selling very well.

5 Don't buy her that book. She might / could not like romances.

6 Have a taste of this sauce – you 're going to / may well like it even though it's very spicy.

3 Complete the second sentence so that it has a similar meaning to the first sentence, using the word given. Sometimes more than one answer is possible.

1 Perhaps we'll meet up later.   MIGHT
   We _____ later.

2 I think it's very possible that Danny will forget to invite somebody.   WELL Danny _____
   to invite somebody.

3 You might become quite rich because of your business idea.   MAKE Your business idea _____ _____ quite rich.

4 Attending university is not something she wants to do.   GOING
   She _____
   to university.

5 At this time, she'll still be awake.   SLEEPING
   She _____
   at this time.