

▶ 2.34 Read and listen to the radio drama.

What's missing?

Harry: Where's Mike? It's 3 o'clock and he hasn't arrived yet.

Marlene: I don't know. I've just come back from lunch. Why?

Harry: Someone's stolen the Barker case file.

Marlene: I saw it on his desk before I went to lunch. I'll go and ...

Harry: I've already looked there. It's gone!

Marlene: Have you called the police yet?

Complete the next part of the radio script with already, just or yet.

Marlene: Mike. It's Marlene. I've
(1) just seen Harry.

Mike: Has he noticed the missing file
(2) _____?

Marlene: Yes. He's (3) _____ looked for it but he hasn't phoned the police
(4) _____.

Mike: I'm not a criminal, Marlene. I'll go to the police station.

Marlene: No. You've (5) _____ caused enough problems. The police might arrest you.

Mike: What should I do?

Marlene: Wait! I've (6) _____ had an idea.

It's 3 o'clock. Write sentences using just, already and yet.

- 1 Marlene / have / lunch.
Marlene has just had lunch.
- 2 Mike / take / the file.

- 3 Harry / look / in Mike's office.

- 4 Marlene / phone / Mike.

- 5 Marlene / have / an idea.

