How many languages do people speak in your country? The United Kingdom has a total of 16 languages with 12 living languages that people are learning now. These include languages like Welsh, Gaelic and British Sign Language. But in London there are about 300 different languages. Of course these are not native languages to the UK. A survey of 850,000 school children in London showed that many speak languages like Bengali, Punjabi, Urdu, Turkish and Chinese. In many schools teachers have classes where the children speak different languages – sometimes as many as 25 in a class of 40 children. This makes teaching very difficult. In London you can take a taxi in Farsi, have breakfast in Polish, order a coffee in Arabic and watch a film in Hindi.
