

Prioritizing global issues

ACTIVITY 1.05

Look at this diamond nine grid which ranks some of the global issues that the world is currently facing. The most important one from this person's perspective is unemployment, which is at the top. Of equal importance underneath are population growth and disease. The issue this person thinks is the least important is at the bottom (crime).

Do you agree with the priorities? Write the global issues according to YOUR priorities.

A blank diamond-shaped grid with 9 boxes, identical in structure to the one in Figure 1.03, intended for the user to write their own priorities.

Consider which of these you think will be the most important for you over the next 20 years. Will your priorities change?

A second blank diamond-shaped grid with 9 boxes, identical in structure to the one above, intended for the user to write their own priorities.
