the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased from 1.5 million to 2.5 million. The public sector has become a major employer in the UK, and this has implications for the way in which the public sector is managed and the way in which it is funded.

It will also discuss the implications of the public sector's growth for the way in which the UK economy is managed and funded.
