

Directions: Decide which kind of heat transfer is taking place. Choose the right answer.

|                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                       |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Using a blanket at night.     | Standing near a hot grill.         | Holding an ice cube.                  | Sitting on the hot leather seats of a car.  |
| Hot water or air rising.      | Using a microwave to pop popcorn.  | Ice cream melting on a hot day.       | Picking up a hot mug of cocoa.              |
| Operating a hot air balloon.  | Boiling water to make pasta.       | Turning on the heater in the winter.  | Warming up an oven to bake cookies.         |