Carrie and her family had just eaten dinner. Carrie's mother said, "Carrie, your birthday is coming up. How would you like to celebrate?"

Carrie thought about it. "I like going to the zoo, but we went there last year. I'd rather do something different this time. Maybe we could go to a baseball game. I love baseball."

"I think that's a terrific idea!" Carrie's mother said.

"I agree," said her father. "Let's order tickets so we can get good seats."

Carrie was getting excited. She and her family were going to a big baseball game for her birthday. Carrie's parents paid for the tickets. They would also buy snacks and drinks. But Carrie wanted a souvenir (soo-vuh-NEER) from the game to help her remember the day. She counted her money. Her grandma had sent her twenty dollars. She had also saved ten dollars on her own. That made thirty dollars. "I bet I have enough for something nice," Carrie thought. "I could buy a T-shirt or a hat."

It was the day before Carrie's birthday. Her parents had bought tickets to a baseball game, and Carrie couldn't wait. Baseball was her favorite sport. She was even on her school's softball team. At practice, she told her coach how excited she was to go to a major-league game.

"Bring a score card so you can remember everything," the coach said.

"But I've never used a score card," Carrie said. "I don't know how."

"It's not difficult," the coach said. "I can teach you if you're interested."

"Thanks!" Carrie said. "I'd really like to learn."

The coach showed Carrie how to record stats on a score card. Soon, she understood. She was ready for the game.
