A black and white cartoon illustration showing two cavemen standing in the entrance of a cave. The cave interior is dark and rocky, with icicles hanging from the ceiling. Outside the cave, the landscape is snowy and mountainous, with a small flower growing in the foreground. The man on the left, who is larger and has a beard, holds a spear and says, "ICE AGE IS ENDING, ISN'T IT?". The man on the right, who is smaller and also has a beard, holds a spear and replies, "...MUST BE OUR FAULT!". The scene is framed by the cave's entrance, with various cave markings and tools visible on the walls.
