

A conjunction or connective is a word that connects parts of a sentence. There are two basic types of conjunctions. They are: coordinating conjunctions used to connect two independent clauses and subordinating conjunctions used to establish the relationship between the dependent clause and the rest of the sentence.

COORDINATING CONJUNCTIONS

Let's work!

1. And-But-Or?

1. The bus stopped the man got off.
2. We stayed at home we ate there.
3. I wanted to buy a newspaper I didn't have enough money.
4. Do you want tea should I make coffee?
5. Did you go to New York did you fly to London in the end?
6. Is this a new house did they renovate an old house?
7. I enjoy visiting many different countries I wouldn't want to live overseas.
8. We made lots of pancakes we ate them all.
9. We went to the countryside we didn't ride horses.
10. She recited the whole poem she won lots of smart stuff.
11. They thought they knew the poem they got nervous.
12. They planted many chañar seed a few of them grew.