TINY LIVING: Questions and Answers with an Expert

JUN: Welcome to "Living Small." This is ^{1.} Ana. She lives in a tiny house with her roommate, and she is ^{2.} here to answer questions about her experience.

ANA: Thanks for having me, Jun. I am ^{3.} happy to answer any questions you have!

JUN: What kinds of tiny homes are ^{4.} available for people to live in?

ANA: Well, there are ^{5.} more options than you think! Some homes are ^{6.} perfect for people interested in nature and other homes are ^{7.} better for people interested in saving money.

JUN: Is ^{8.} it necessary to move away from a city?

ANA: No, it isn't ^{9 neg.}! Living small works well in nature and in a big city.

JUN: I am ^{10.} really interested in a tiny home, but I have a lot of things, like books and clothes. What if I can't fit all my things in my new house?

ANA: It isn't ^{11.} true. It isn't ^{12 neg.} easy to fit everything in a tiny house. You will have to give away some of your things before you move. When my roommate and I moved into our tiny house, I was ^{13.} worried about this, too. But, after we packed our bags, we were ^{14.} surprised at how happy we felt. At first, we were ^{15 neg.} happy to give things away, but in the end it was ^{16.} a really nice feeling to have fewer things. All of the things we didn't keep were ^{17 neg.} important anymore. We felt free!

JUN: That sounds really nice, Ana! Before we end our show, can you answer one more question? What is ^{18.} the most important piece of advice you have for a new tiny house owner?

ANA: Great question! It isn't ^{19.} important to remember why you want to live small. Sometimes, in the beginning, you aren't ^{20 neg.} going to be comfortable in a small space, and you might feel frustrated. You have to keep your goal in mind and that will help you stay happy in your new home!

JUN: Thanks so much for sharing your thoughts, Ana!

ANA: My pleasure!
