Once upon a time, in a far, far away land there was a strange character named Monster.

Winterland, it is a place full of peace and love, not many people come here so some creatures as Monster can live happily. But one day, Monster woke up and saw a car getting in to Winterland, there were people around doing many activities, all of them looked happy and smiley, But Monster was sad, he wanted to go out and be in his town.

So, one day, Monster had the idea to go out and see how these people behave, he found a place in which nobody could see him but he could see everything around, from the top of a mountain, the first thing that called his attention was how happy and comfortable they look despite it was so cold. There were some people building a _____, they used some wood sticks, _____, and some clothes. Others were _____ down the peak, in that moment a _____ broke and Monster saw how people helped and supported the person, he was surprised. Finally, there others were _____, they seem to enjoy these activities a lot. Monster was furious because he wanted to be there doing it as well.

Monster spent all afternoon there, and when sunset came, he went home, when he was walking, he heard some laughter and voice, he was curious and walked following the noises. It comes from a house, Monster has an incredible view so he wanted to explore what was happening inside, there were some people First, there were two people playing _____, they looked so concentrated. Then, there was a girl reading a _____, he could not identify more about her reading. There was a boy pointing a date in a _____, he looked excited, there was a curious thing, there was an old lady looking directly to a photograph on the wall, this photograph was a _____ couple, she looked so nostalgic.

After this reflection, Monster promised to make Winterland a place for everybody because he discovered that it is necessary to think in others as well. Since that day Winterland was a more incredible place and Monster learned to listen and see the real thing that life has.
