Going for Bronze

It's ten in the morning, it's raining heavily and Rita and a small group of her classmates have been hiking for four hours. ______ They are doing their Bronze level of the Duke of Edinburgh (Doaward and to achieve the award they have to complete an expedition of two days and one night. Last night they camped under some trees and they were woken at 5 a.m. by the birds singing. They haven't had much sleep, but that hasn't had a negative impact on their good spirits.

'Yesterday we walked for twenty-five kilometres so we were really tired at the end of the day.' says Rita. 'We set up camp under some trees, then we made a camp fire and cooked dinner – we had sausages and baked beans. Everyone helped out and then we sat round the fire and sang camp songs. It was really good fun.' For many, such as Dan, one of the benefits of doing the DofE is the friendships that develop out of a shared experience. "When it's pouring with rain and you still have to walk ten kilometres, the team spirit keeps you going and determined to finish,' adds Rita.

"We got a bit lost yesterday and walked five kilometres more than we should have, but we were able to find our way again using the map and a compass.' says Dan. Participants also learn how to pitch a tent and start a camp fire. In addition to this, many young people grow in self-confidence and self-belief. 'Before starting my DofE award, I didn't' think I could do many things.' says Tanya. 'Now I feel I can tackle most things.'

'Doing the DofE gives you much more than something that looks good on your CV. 'says Rita. 'It can be challenging at times, but by persevering through tough times on expeditions and juggling my DofE commitments with studies, I've learnt about commitment and a determination to achieve my end goal.' Rita continues, 'The DofE programme helps young people get a sense of discipline and structure. It encourages children with disabilities to take part and they go on to complete their expeditions and experience a huge sense of achievement.'

Rita is not alone. In 2016/17, more than 271,000 young people started their DofE – that's up 7 percent on 2015/16. Awards achieved also increased with over 133,000 gaining a Bronze, Silver or Gold Award, up 11 percent from the previous year. However, the biggest increase by a long way is in the number of young people from a disadvantaged background starting their DofE. This figure rose______ percent from 2015/16 to almost 50,000. Over sixty years since the awards were established, they remain relevant to young people.
